How did you hear about Little Spot dogs?

The Australian Shepherd is not the "right" dog for everyone. They do best with regular human contact, early socialization and training. Aussies also shed and will require regular grooming. Some Aussies will show their herding instinct by nipping/herding people and other animals or moving objects and must be taught when this is not appropriate behavior. I encourage you to do your research on this breed to determine if it is the right breed for you.
